Bumped Heads

It has come to our attention that parents are not always aware if their child has bumped their head in school due to bumped head notes not being noticed in book bags or messages not reaching you. To make you aware that your child has been given a bumped head note the office staff will ring parents to let you know even if the bump is very minor. Please be aware that this is just to notify you and details will be given when you pick your child up at the end of the day as the office staff will not be aware of the circumstances. This phone call is not to cause you any worry and is not for you to collect your child as this will only be necessary when the bump is not a minor one.

Friends of St Philips

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday 14th November 2018 at 7.30pm at St Philip's Church. All are welcome to help plan for our next event, the Christmas Disco's on 9th December.

If you would like to get involved and cannot make the meeting, please email friends.st.philips@outlook.com

School Funding for 'Little Extras'

You may, or may not, be aware that in the Chancellor's budget statement on Monday he allocated £400 million to schools (£10,000 per primary school and £50,000 per secondary school) for 'little extras'. Clearly this infuriated schools as 'little extra' are not what we are worried about but rather funding that keeps up with inflation and costs so that we have enough money to pay our staff, to run and maintain the building and grounds and also to make sure we have the resources we need to give our children the education they deserve. We are hoping that the Government spending review next spring will outline how school funding will increase to match rising costs. At least our protests have touched a nerve, led to the Chancellor saying something that has not gone down well with parents and schools AND if it triggered even a short term windfall then technically the Headteacher's protest march in London was worth £10,000 to our school.
